Teaching & Learning in COVID-19 times study
Research Team

Associate Professor Louise Phillips (James Cook University, Singapore), Dr Chris Campbell (Griffith University),
Associate Professor Susan Davis (Central Queensland University),
Dr Melissa Cain (Australian Catholic University),
Dr Kate Coleman (University of Melbourne),
Dr Geraldine Burke (Monash University),
Associate Professor Jenny Ritchie (Victoria University, Wellington),
Professor Cynthia Brock (University of Wyoming),
Dr Esther Joosa (Independent Researcher, Singapore)
This qualitative survey-based study inquires into how teachers are making sense of the COVID-19 restrictions on teaching and learning practices.

Survey link -
https://tinyurl.com/TeachinginCOVID
As at 27th June 257 Teachers from Australia, New Zealand, Singapore, USA & Pacific Islands have responded to the survey
Survey Question 7 How has COVID-19 impacted your teaching & learning?

Concerns of:
- pragmatics
- technology
- mental health
- relationships
- access to resources
- innovation
- workload
- benefits

The research team is archiving teaching & learning resources related to COVID-19 and the project’s data in this data archive

Please send Teaching & learning resources related to COVID-19 to Louise.phillips@jcu.edu.au

The survey will remain open until 14 July – spread the word
https://tinyurl.com/TeachinginCOVID